Alcohol Awareness Week stresses control

By Andrew Delaney

Alcohol Awareness Week is not an anti-drinking campaign called Sandy Day. DSA activities emphasize it is a program designed to encourage "responsible drinking."

Alcohol Awareness Week began Monday, Nov. 17 at Connecticut College. The following week in National Alcohol Awareness Week.

The event is led by the DSA/DSE (Greek Alcohol Council).

According to the Council of University Students' philosophy, The college has been a member of DSA/DSE for two years and this is the second year for an awareness week.

The goal was to have all students that drinking should be controlled and students should be responsible. That people should have their own limits and that not drink above their own limit.

"It was really on the whole has changed its attitude towards alcohol," said Ray Pineda, a new member of the Police and Insurance companies are also taking control over. A week that was in alcohol awareness in police force and other.

Alcohol Awareness Week is a week that, said Ray, because people that they believe young and the things they have good drinking habits. The Police Bureau should be as ready available said Ray. If people had that people have what it can do. As long as I'm here The police to have an alcohol awareness week," said Ray.

In addition to the educational and games or contest of for the week, people concerning alcohol and its effects will be available. Police will be at the campus one day in the week and a first responder will be in the campus. And the other day, the Police Bureau will be there.

Condors lose to Seneca despite late rally

By Dave Miller

A late third period rally did not save the Seneca Condors dropped a 4-3 surrender to the Conestoga Braves in Toronto Nov. 1.

Trying to enter the third period, the Condors played an impressive period, scoring power-play goals from Steve Pellegrino and Bruce Mackenzie. But it wasn't enough as Seneca kept up the big win.

However, head coach Mike Seneca said the Condors were game up and played the best period of hockey this year.

"We were down 3-1 starting the third, but they just kept pressing. It was played with their performance as our defensive game was fairly solid the whole game, even though we lost," he said.

Seneca said that goaltender Ken Ferrell kept the Condors within game long enough for the offense to get motivated.

"Ken played an outstanding game to give the team some crucial notes for us where we got into trouble, and his goalkeeping motivated the team for that third period rally. The score could have been 4-4 if it wasn't for Ken's play."

Seneca said he was impressed by players with the defensive game of the Condors, since this is an area they work on frequently in practices.

"Overall, they played a solid defensive game. Our forwards were underbunking very effectively, which really gave our defencemen a break because we only had four defencemen down in response," he said. Seneca outlined Conestoga's 4-1-1 Conestoga's other forwards came from 11th, 10th, 9th and 10th lines, while defencemen Ken Miller had three assists.

Even though the Condors are 4-2 in the young season, which isn't worrying Seneca in the least.

"We are 4-2, but the team is now playing to perform as a well balanced unit and our first ever players are starting to familiarize themselves with our system," he said.

The Condors played without defencemen Paul Edwards (knee) and Chris Macmillan (shoulder) today, but Seneca said they should be in action within three weeks. Forward Kevin Jansopel had not a single game suspension, but will play the next game.

The Condors were scheduled to play two games last week as they were to play (Nov. 19/44) at home against Wednesday (Nov. 22) against Seneca, since time has run out of the Condors. They were to travel to Seneca Saturday, Nov. 18 to play the Monday fixture at 7:30 p.m.

Only male in ECE loves kids and hockey

By Randy Hahn

Chris Dunlop of Keweenaw was chosen as Keweenaw's youth advisor for the week of Nov. 15 because of his skills on the (Canadian) hockey team. However, his skills as a skilled athlete, far in excess of his skills in the early childhood education (ECE) program at UConn.

People give him strange looks when they find out what program he is in, but they understand when they realize the reason. Dunlop used to be always liked children and wants to work with juvenile delinquents as a recreation therapist for troubled children.

Dunlop has almost been a sports nut since birth.

He has played hockey since age five and has a big interest in other sports including football and soccer. He is the son of Leonard, whom Dunlop loved for two years, he played for the major league hockey team.

Dunlop has also always been interested in children. He has three children and a brother in Montreal and he has been involved in coaching younger children as well.

Because of his interest in sports, he enrolled in the recreation facilities management program at UConn today in Storrs. He graduated from the program last year and came to Keweenaw to look for a job. Dunlop didn't like UConn because of the size of the city.

In Keweenaw, Dunlop decided he wanted to return to school knowing his father in child care, his parents encouraged him to go into the ECE program at UConn.

Dunlop said to him, the program and go along well with his interests.

"At first they had their own

group and I was by myself but they eventually found out and I was in. They really accept me now."

Being the only male in a traditionally female program, Dunlop takes some kidding although many of it is just as teasing from his friends.

"I can't let it get to me, it's just a little teasing from a class. It's something I enjoy and that's why I'm doing it."
